STORMWATER MANAGEMENT FACILITIES NOT SAFE TO RECREATE

Your community pond has a secret. It's not a pond at all. It's a stormwater management facility and its dangerously deep areas and unpredictable ice thickness makes it unsafe for all activities.

While they may look frozen, stormwater management facilities have water continuously flowing below the ice surface. This means that some areas may have ice while other areas may have little to no ice.

Find safe places to skate instead, including the City's two illuminated freezeways, and information on current ice conditions at stalbert.ca and search Rinks.

Learn more about ice safety at stalbert.ca and search Ice Safety.
